Questions about kitniyot (legumes, rice, corn, soy beans, peas and lentils)

In December of 2015, the Conservative Movement's Committee on Jewish Law and Standards offered a halakhic responsum, a teshuvah, that permits Ashkenazic Jews to eat kitniyot (legumes, rice, corn, soy beans, peas and lentils). This teshuvah cites numerous halakhic works as support allowing the eating of kitniyot on Passover. The responsum uses many halakhic proof texts to clarify that refraining from eating kitniyot is an error and an unnecessary stringent act, even if it was a custom that these rabbis continued to follow. Taking into account these texts, as well as eating habits, diets, and food restrictions, and the inapplicability to the original concern that led to the prohibition of eating kitniyot, the responsum permits the eating of kitniyot on Passover.

As mara d'atra of Congregation Beth El, taking into account this teshuva, the eating of kitniyot on Passover is permitted. For those who are interested, you can read the full teshuvah here. We respect each individual's personal practice.

It is important to note that Conservative movement authorities have long held that peanuts and green beans are not and were never kitniyot. Therefore, even folks who wish to maintain the traditional Ashkenazi stringency against kitniyot may eat green beans, as well as peanuts and any peanut derivatives (like peanut butter and peanut oil) on Pesach. In fact, peanuts, natural peanut butter, and peanut oil, may be purchased by anyone before Pesach without Kosher for Pesach certification, provided said items have proper year-round kosher certification and do not contain hametz ingredients.

For those who refrain from eating kitniyot on Passover, it is important to note that Kitniyot are NOT hametz and serving kitniyot will NOT make your house or your dishes non-kosher for Passover.

What Goes on the Seder Plate?

For Karpas, we usually use parsley, but it can be any vegetable. In fact, in Israel, a boiled potato is regularly used. For Maror, we usually use horseradish. If horseradish is not available, find other vegetables or fruits that can bring a tear to the eye if consumed raw (such as hot peppers, fresh ginger, mustard greens, or a raw lemon). For an egg and a shankbone, the Talmud (Pesachim 114b) offers substitutes. If one is unable to have a shankbone for their seder plate, a roasted beet is acceptable. This is a common substitute for those who are vegetarian.

We are taught that “in every generation, we should see ourselves as having left Egypt.” This is a reminder that the fight for freedom is constant and ongoing. As a result, there are many modern additions to the seder plate that we would encourage you to think about adding, reminding us of those who continue to fight for freedom today. These include:

→ an orange: Dr. Susannah Heschel began encouraging individuals to add an orange on their seder plates in the late 1980s, asking each attendee to take a segment of the orange and eat it, as a sign of solidarity with the LGBTQ+ community and others who at times have felt marginalized within Jewish spaces. This ritual includes spitting out orange seeds, which represent homophobia and bigotry.

→ Miriam’s Cup: Last year, Beth El gave out special “RBG Miriam’s Cups” to congregants, celebrating the leadership of Miriam the prophetess as well as the late great Jewish Supreme Court justice, Ruth Bader Ginsburg. While Miriam’s Cup begins empty, all are encouraged to take a bit of their water and add it to the cup. This represents the healing waters of Miriam’s well that followed the Israelites throughout the wilderness. Such a ritual object also celebrates the heroism of women like Miriam, Yocheved, Shifra, and Puah, who were so integral to the exodus narrative.

→ a pinecone: The pinecone houses the most precious of nuts, the pine nut. These pine nuts remain hidden and unseen. The pinecone imprisons these precious nuts. Many suggest that mass incarceration is modern day slavery. These pinecones remind us of the problem of mass incarceration, and the work we need to do to repair such systemic injustice.

→ a tomato: The Justice Department has referred Immokalee, Florida, where over 50% of America’s tomatoes are picked, as ground zero of human trafficking in this country. The Coalition of Immokalee Workers (CIW) began the Campaign for Fair Food, to increase pay and humane treatment of agricultural workers. This tomato on the seder plate is a reminder of the farmworker who picked it, and reminds us of the many human rights that agricultural workers regularly don't have access to. Supporting the Campaign for Fair Food allows us to fulfill our promise to fight to end modern-day slavery.

How do we eliminate Hametz from our homes?

Eliminating the hametz from our homes may seem like a daunting task. However, there are a few basic steps which performed together will make your house clean and ready for Pesach.

1. We start by removing all leavened foods from our homes. We also understand that, especially at a time when access to all foods may be challenging, removing food from your home is both wasteful and worrisome. For that reason, you can seal off your hametz products in a closed off cabinet and temporarily sell your hametz to someone of another faith who doesn't observe Passover. Information on how to do so, and having Rabbi Olitzky serve as your agent and sell your hametz on your behalf is listed below.
2. The second step is cleaning and kashering your home for Pesach. While some see this as a burden, it can also be a spiritual practice. We rid the hametz from our homes. These leavened products represent our own "puffiness." The act of cleaning for Passover allows us to rid ourselves of haughtiness as well. This experience of social distancing and quarantining humbles us also.
3. Hametz also represents the "puffiness" inside us, our own egos. Getting rid of hametz is more than just cleaning our homes and kitchens; it is also a spiritual exercise. Part of preparing for Passover should be taking the time to purge the hametz from within our hearts and minds as well.

Parts of the Rabbinical Assembly's Passover Guide are below. The general principles are: nothing that is absorbent, such as wood, can be kashered. Other materials are kashered in a way that is equivalent to the way they are used. If something is used on the stovetop, it must be immersed in boiling water. If something is used in the oven, it must have more intense heat such as by placing in a heated oven or using a blowtorch. I recommend purchasing baking pans to use only for Passover rather than risking damage or injuries! Anything that has “cold contact” like refrigerators and kitchen cupboards, needs to be wiped down and cleaned with cleanser.

Please contact Rabbi Olitzky or Rabbi Marder with specific questions you may have.

What do I do with hametz that is too valuable for me to throw out or donate?

Rabbinic tradition understood that there is a financial loss in throwing out hametz. Additionally, there is a concern over wasting so much food.

Especially now, we urge you to not waste food and unnecessarily throw food away. For that reason, there is also the halakhic concept of Mechirat hametz, or “selling one’s hametz” that is too valuable to remove from your home. This is a legal device that permits us to transfer ownership of any hametz that is too valuable to destroy (such as fine liquors, unopened supplies of pasta) or which has been overlooked. Hametz that is to be sold should be stored out of sight and sealed away for the duration of the holiday. Rabbi Olitzky will “sell” your hametz to someone of another faith for the duration of Passover.

Since this is a legal transaction, Rabbi Olitzky needs to be explicitly appointed to perform such a sale on your behalf. If you would like Rabbi Olitzky to serve as your agent and sell your hametz on your behalf, you can fill out this form online.

It is customary to make a contribution to tzedakah at this time as well. We especially take this mitzvah to heart this year in our current economic reality.

Ma’ot Chittin -- It is an ancient custom to make a special solicitation for the poor in the weeks before Passover so that no one will be hungry for Passover and families have the capacity to make Seder. We encourage you to donate money to those who are currently food insecure. There are many organizations doing incredible work. Some include Masbia Soup Kitchen, which is providing kosher meals to those who are food insecure and currently quarantined, and MEND – Meeting Essential Needs with

Dignity. We also encourage you to consider donating to the Interfaith Food Pantry of the Oranges, which our congregation helps to staff. The IFPO continues to provide food to over 400 clients a week, even during the pandemic.

Shopping for Passover Food

Which foods require a Kosher for Passover certification? Which foods can be purchased without a Kosher for Passover certification during Passover and which must be bought before Passover?

NO KOSHER FOR PASSOVER HEKHSHER REQUIRED BEFORE OR DURING PASSOVER: These products may be purchased without a Pesach hekhsher before or during Pesach: baking soda, bicarbonate of soda, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables (including pre-washed bagged_, fresh or frozen kosher meat (other than chopped meat), Nestea (regular and decaffeinated), pure black, green, or white tea leaves, unflavored tea bags, unflavored regular coffee, olive oil (and other pure oils), whole or gutted fresh fish, whole or half pecans, whole (unground) spices and nuts

NO KOSHER FOR PASSOVER HEKHSHER REQUIRED ONLY IF PURCHASED BEFORE PASSOVER: These are products which may only be purchased without a Pesach hekhsher before Pesach. If bought during Pesach they DO require a Pesach hekhsher: all pure fruit juices, filleted fish, frozen fruit (no additives), plain cheeses (without any flavor morsels), non-iodized salt, pure white sugar (no additives), quinoa (pure with nothing mixed in), white milk, some fair-trade chocolates should be by Equal-Exchange (check out shop.equalexchange.coop/pesach for more information), chopped meat, plain, non-flavored almond milk, rice milk, soy milk, cashew milk, non-flavored cream cheeses (with ingredients of milk and cream, salt, stabilizers (xanthan and/or carob bean and/or guar gums)), non-flavored yogurt with milk and bacteria only (which are Lactobacillus bulgaricus and Streptococcus thermophilus), canned tuna (with just tuna, water or oil, salt and pyrophosphates); 100% maple syrup, 100% Agave, ground salt and peppers, plain (non-flavored) decaf coffee, plain margarine, pure honey, dried fruit

Frozen, uncooked vegetables may be processed on shared equipment that uses hametz. Therefore, it is preferable to purchase those with a kosher l'Pesach label. One may however buy bags of frozen non-hekhspered vegetables before Pesach provided that one can either absolutely determine that no shared equipment was used or one is careful to inspect the contents before Pesach and discard any pieces of hametz.

FOR THOSE WHO EAT KITNIYOT:

Fresh corn on the cob and fresh beans (like lima beans in their pods) may be purchased before and during Pesach, that is, treated like any other fresh vegetable. Dried kitniyot (legumes, rice and corn) can be purchased bagged or in boxes and then sifted or sorted before Pesach. These should ideally not be purchased in bulk from bins because of the concern that the bin might previously have been used for hametz, and a few grains of hametz might be mixed in. In any case, one should inspect these before Pesach and discard any pieces of hametz. If one did not inspect the rice or dried beans before Pesach, one should remove pieces of hametz found in the package on Pesach, discarding those, and the kitniyot themselves remain permissible. Kitniyot in cans may only be purchased with Pesach certification since the canning process has certain related hametz concerns, and may be purchased on Pesach. With regards to frozen raw kitniyot (corn, edamame [soy beans], etc.), one may purchase bags of frozen non-hekhsheredn kitniyot before Pesach provided that one can either absolutely determine that no shared equipment was used or one is careful to inspect the contents before Pesach and discard any pieces of hametz. Even if one did not inspect the vegetables before Pesach, if one can remove pieces of hametz found in the package on Pesach, the vegetables themselves are permissible. Processed foods, including tofu, although containing no listed hametz, continue to require Pesach certification due to the possibility of admixtures of hametz during production. Even those who continue to observe the Ashkenazic custom of eschewing kitniyot during Pesach may eat from Pesach dishes, utensils and cooking vessels that have come into contact with kitniyot and may consume kitniyot derivatives like oil.

Bedikat Hametz -- Searching for Leaven

On Thursday evening, April 14 as soon as night has fallen, at 8:04 PM, we continue the process of removal of hametz by doing Bedikat Hametz (the search for leaven) and Bitul Hametz (the nullification of leaven).

First, we light a single candle and say the blessing:

Baruch ata adonai eloheinu melech ha-olam asher kidshanu b'mitzvotav vetzivanu al biyur hametz.

Blessed are You, Adonai, our God, ruler of the universe, that sanctified us with God's commandments and commanded us to remove hametz.

Then by candlelight we search the house for little pieces of hametz. It is customary to search for this hametz with a wooden spoon and a feather. In many cases, you may actually find crumbs. If you did a thorough job cleaning though, it may be more challenging to find hametz. For this reason, some follow the custom of actually hiding pieces of hametz to ensure that some is found when searching. This is a great ritual for all ages, but especially a hands-on opportunity for young children. After the search for the hametz is done, and all the pieces are found, we collect the pieces and the remaining leaven.

We proceed with the recitation of the formula for Bitul Hametz:

Kol Chamira v'chami'ah, d'ika virshuti d'la chami'tei ud'la vi'artei ud'la y'da'na lei li'batel v'lehavei hefker k'afra v'ar'a.

All hametz, leaven and leavened bread, in my possession which I have neither seen nor removed nor know about, should be annulled and considered ownerless, like the dust of the earth.

Bedikat Hametz kits--which include a wooden spoon and feather to pick up hametz, a candle whose light is used to search for hametz, and the blessing for searching and nullifying hametz—are available on online. Feel free to make your own kit!

The next day, Friday morning, April 15, we burn the collected leaven, Bi'ur Hametz, with any tools that were used to collect it. This should be done before 11:50 am. Again, you should recite the nullification formula above as you burn the hametz. Additionally, you should not eat any leavened foods after 10:42 am so that you will be hungry for the Matzah of the seder!! We will meet at the South Orange Fire Station at 11:30am on Friday, April 15 to sell our community's hametz to South Orange Village President Sheena Collum, burn our hametz, explore the fire trucks, and learn about fire safety.

With the cleaning, sale, nullification and burning of hametz, your house is “Kosher for Passover”

If I am the first-born in my family, do I have special responsibilities?

Yes. In commemoration of the final plague that killed the first-born Egyptians and the saving of the Israelite first-borns who were “passed over” because their families had the first Pesach meal, we have the tradition of the Fast of the First Born. The first-borns are obligated to fast the day before Passover. The Fast of the First-Born will take place on Friday, April 15.

Some follow the custom of having a siyyum, completing a text of study, and thus, celebrating with a feast so that they do not have to fast the day before a holiday. A siyyum will take place that morning following our morning minyan.

PLEASE LOOK AT OUR WEBSITE PORTAL, WEEKLY EMAIL, AND FACEBOOK PAGE FOR WAYS TO VIRTUALLY JOIN US FOR HOLIDAY SERVICES AND PROGRAMS, BEFORE AND DURING PASSOVER.

From the Rabbinical Assembly of America's Passover Guide:

KASHERING OF KITCHEN APPLIANCES AND UTENSILS:

It is customary (and easiest) to remove the utensils and dishes that are used during the year, replacing them with either new utensils or utensils reserved for exclusive use on Pesach. This is clearly not feasible for major kitchen appliances and may not even be possible for dishes and utensils. There is a process for kashering a variety of utensils and appliances.

The general principle used in kashering is that the way the utensil absorbs food is the way it can be purged of that food כּוּלוֹ כִּי פוּלְטוֹ (ke-volo kach pol-to). This principle operates on the basis of the quality or intensity of how the particular item absorbs food. Kitchen items used for cold food can be kashered by rinsing, since no substance has been absorbed by the dish or glass. Items used on a stove absorb the food and thus need a stronger level of action, namely expelling the food into boiling water through a process called הגעלה (hag'alah). The most intense form of kashering applies to items used directly on a fire or in an oven and these utensils require a process of kashering called ליבון (libbun), which burns away absorbed food.

METALS

To kasher pots, silverware, and utensils wholly of metal not used for baking, thoroughly clean the item with soap and water, then, following a strict 24 hour waiting period during which they are not used, immerse the item in water that is at a rolling boil (הגעלה – hag'alah). For pots and pans, clean handles thoroughly. If the handle can be removed, do so for an even more thorough cleaning. To effect הגעלה (hag'alah, a method for kashering for Pesach), the item must be completely exposed to the boiling water. Pots and pans are either immersed in a larger pot of boiling water (may be done one section at a time) or filled with water brought to a rolling boil and then a heated stone is dropped into the pot such that the boiling water overflows to cover the sides of the pot. A safer alternative might be let the water boil over the sides of the pot. In the case of silverware every part of each piece must be exposed to the water at a rolling boil. Following this הגעלה (hag'alah) process, each utensil is rinsed in cold water.

Metal bakeware used in a fire or in an oven must first be thoroughly scrubbed and cleaned and then must be subjected to direct fire or an oven at its maximum setting. Thus using a blow torch or putting it in an oven during self-cleaning are two ways to accomplish this purging (ליבון – libbun). This is a complicated and a potentially dangerous procedure and may result in discoloration or warping of the metal being purged.

Exercise caution when performing ליבון (libbun). Metal baking pans and sheets require ליבון (libbun) at very high temperatures which may warp the vessel. This may result in a reluctance to submit the vessel to the required temperature.

A metal kitchen sink can be kashered by thoroughly cleaning and scrubbing the sink (especially the garbage catch,) letting 24 hours pass during which only cold water is used, and then carefully pouring boiling water over all the surfaces of the sink including the lip. F A porcelain sink cannot be kashered, but should be thoroughly cleaned, then Pesach dish basins and dish racks must be used, one each for dairy and meat.

GLASS

Glass dishes used for eating and serving hot foods are to be treated like any dish used for eating and serving hot food. Kashering is effected by cleaning and immersing in boiling water (הגעלה hag'alah).

CERAMIC DISHES

Ceramic dishes (earthenware, stoneware, china, pottery, etc) cannot be kashered. However, rabbinic tradition also takes into account the financial challenges of not being able to kasher such expensive and fine dishes. Fine china that was put away clean and that has not been used for over one Jewish calendar year may be used after thorough detergent and hot water washing. The china is then considered pareve and may be designated for meat or dairy use.

COOKING APPLIANCES

For ovens and ranges, every part that comes in contact with food must be thoroughly cleaned. This includes the walls and the top and bottom of the oven. Then the oven or range should be heated as hot as possible. The oven should be heated at maximum heat for an hour. The range top should be heated until the elements turn red and glow. Then parts of the range top around the elements that can be covered should be covered, (usually with aluminum foil). After a general and careful cleaning, self cleaning ovens are put through the full cleaning cycle while empty. Following this process, the oven should be cleaned again to remove any ash. If the oven was very dirty to start, two cycles may be needed to assure a thorough cleaning.

Smooth, glass top electric ranges require kashering by ליבון (libbun) and ערוי (iruy – pouring boiling water over the surface of the range top). First, clean the top thoroughly, then turn the coils on maximum heat until they are red hot. Then carefully pour boiling water on the surface area over and around the burners. The range top may now be used for cooking.

Microwave ovens that have no convection option should be thoroughly cleaned. Then an 8-ounce cup of water is placed inside and the microwave oven is turned on until the water boils over and almost disappears (at least 6 of the 8 ounces is gone). Heating to complete dryness may damage the oven. A microwave oven that has a browning element cannot be kashered.

Convection ovens are kashered like regular ovens. Make sure that during the cleaning phase you clean thoroughly around the fan.

ADDITIONAL KITCHEN APPLIANCES

A dishwasher needs to be cleaned as thoroughly as possible including the inside area around the drainage and filters. Then a full cycle with detergent (with racks in) should be run while the dishwasher is empty. After 24 hours of not being used the dishwasher is again run empty (with racks in) and set on the highest heat for the purpose of kashering. If the sides of the dishwasher are made of enamel or porcelain, the dishwasher cannot be kashered for Pesach.

Other electrical appliances can be kashered if the parts that come in contact with חמץ (hametz) are metal and are removable, in which case they may be kashered like all other metal cooking utensils. If the parts are not removable, the appliances cannot be kashered. We recommend whenever possible that small appliances be used that are strictly for Pesach, thus avoiding the difficulty of kashering these appliances.

WORK SURFACES

Most counter top surfaces can be kashered simply by a thorough cleaning, a 24 hour wait and ערוי (iruy – pouring boiling water over them). To have ערוי (iruy) be effective for kashering, the surface must have no hairline cracks, nicks or scratches that can be seen with the naked eye.

- Plastic laminates, limestone, soapstone, granite, marble, glass, Corian, Staron, Ceasarstone, Swanstone, Surell and Avonite surfaces can be kashered by ערוי (iruy).
- Wood without scratches is also kashered by ערוי (iruy).
- Ceramic, cement or porcelain counter tops cannot be kashered by ערוי (iruy).

The potential effectiveness of ערוי (iruy) depends on the material of which the counter was made. [Many have the custom of covering their countertops. If you do this, make sure that the material does not contain hametz. Covering is not necessary if the surface has been scrubbed with cleanser and covered with boiling water.]

Refrigerators and freezers should be thoroughly cleaned with detergent. If you are concerned how thoroughly the shelves must be cleaned, then you can also cover the refrigerator shelves.
